

What a Gem!

Rob and I had the very great pleasure of meeting Paul Manwaring and his wife Amanda in Wales this weekend. We visited their shop in Newcastle Emlyn and were delighted not only by the marvellous selection of crystals and spiritual items but also by the overwhelming kindness of this wonderful couple and Paul's lovely Mum who we also had the privilege to meet.

It is rare in these days of uncertainty, selfishness and greed to have your faith in human nature restored but I can truly say that has happened to us in coming across the pathways of these lovely souls. It is been a while since I met such altruistic, selfless people whose energies and love exude from them like a lighted candle illuminating a darkened room.

We are only too happy to feature their shop and also to help inform people of the wonderful courses and healing that take place weekly there. They are in the process of setting up a website so when we have more details we will let you know.

Rob and I always enjoy our spiritual work, especially in Wales and meet such lovely people who are doing their bit to make our world a happier place. If, as a collective we can pool our thoughts then together we can make a difference.
